Parole Method Request Included In 4 Additions To Felon Complaint List

Daily Universe Exclusive

Prisoners at the Utah State Prison added four suggestions to a 43 item list last week for the improvement of conditions which set off a night-long riot Feb. 8.

One addition to the list was felt by the prisoners to be "perhaps the most important suggestion of all" and dealt with the enlarging of the parole system of the state.

They said the system should be integrated with community organizations, civic groups, fraternal and service clubs, schools and churches to educate the public in accepting the parolee back into society, rather than regard him as an outcast.

The prisoners pointed out that "eventually 95 per cent of all inmates in prisons today will be released to go back out into society."

Why not improve the system enough to 'help us to help ourselves' be a credit to the state of Utah instead of an increasing disgrace?" the suggestions said.

The list, which was given to three Brigham Young University students who teach in the prison's education system, outlined the prisoners' complaints and elaborated on the suggestions they made.

The three students, Marvin Hogensen, Clair Kilts and Joe Gates, were all held hostage several hours the night of Feb. 8 when prisoners rioted and took control of the prison in an expensive melee.

Several thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed in the prison by the rioters.

A "trades training" program, establishment of a disciplinary or adjustment committee and establishment of a "foolproof" method of handling inmate mail were the other three suggestions listed by the inmate grievance committee.

The committee suggested that "apprenticeship credit for time worked at a trade while here would be a great step forward in a trades training program to help prisoners.

The adjustment committee would be organized, the committee said, to grant a "fair hearing" to an inmate for infractions of the rules.

"At the present time, and in the past, inmates have been sent to lock-up or 'put on the grade' at the discretion of individual guards, and in most cases for an unknown length of time," the grievance stated.

"Several inmates have lost (and complained about it to no avail) clothes, magazines, letters, papers, etc., from the mail room," the committee said in asking for a thorough investigation by a United States postal inspector."

In citing the reasons for most of prisoners' grievances, the committee pointed out the need for trained penologists and more opportunities for rehabilitation of prisoners.

Choir Director Given Grant By Foundation

Newell B. Weight, associate professor of music at Brigham Young University, has been awarded a Danforth Teachers grant, one of 37 in the United States.

Weight is director of the nationally famous BYU A Capella Choir.

The scholarship includes one year of study with all tuition, books and fees to a university of the receiver's choice and plus $5000. Weight plans to attend the University of Southern California for a year having been given a leave of absence from BYU and then taking another year on Sabbatical leave to obtain his doctor's degree.

Weight and his wife have also been invited to the Danforth conference at a resort hotel in Detroit, Mich., in August for a week's orientation with all expenses paid.

A college may submit one application for every 1000 students and Weight's name was one of three submitted by BYU. Of 500 entries, 140 were selected by the Foundation and personal interviews were made. The final 37 then were chosen to receive grants

Dr. J. W. Taylor Takes Helm As Commerce College Leader

The College of Commerce at Brigham Young University has named Weldon J. Taylor its new dean.

Dean Taylor, a faculty member since 1947, has received several citations for his work in the field of marketing.

He will relieve Dr William F. Edwards of his duties as dean of the college, as Dr Edwards has served in the dual capacity of dean of the college and vice president of the University in charge of finance and business administration since the unification of the Church School System in 1952.

Also since that time, Dr Edwards has been associate editor of Real Estate, the former dean, who has handled many of the administrative details

The College of Commerce includes the departments of Accounting, Business Education and Office Management, Economics, Finance and Banking, Industrial Management, and Marketing.

Dean Taylor was awarded the highest citation for scholarship given by New York University, the Founders Day Certificate of Achievement.

Within the past three years Dean Taylor has been honored by the New York Council of Market Research with six citations for teaching merit. This recognition is awarded professors whose students win top national honors in market research.

The new dean received his Bachelor of Science degree from BYU in 1934, his Master's degree from Harvard in 1937, and his Ph.D. from New York University.

After serving as a specialist in business research for several corporations, including Greater Utah Valley, Inc., he is currently preparing a textbook for use in college marketing classes.

Dr. E. L. Christensen Named To Department Chairmanship

A Rotating Program . . .

Dr Edward L. Christensen has been appointed chairman of Brigham Young University's department of business education and office management to replace Lee Crandall, according to President Ernest L. Wilkinson.

The move, to be made effective June 1, is in accordance with BYU policy of rotating chairmanships of departments.

Professor Crandall, an assistant professor of secretarial training, will take a leave of absence to continue graduate study after June 1.

Dr. Christensen, associate professor of business education and office management, came to BYU in 1953 from Weber Junior College. He obtained his Bachelor of Science, Masters and Doctorate degrees from University of Utah in 1938, 1939 and 1953.

Dr. Christensen is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa honorary professional education fraternity, and the Phi Kappa Phi, a scholastic fraternity. He wrote the teaching creed which the Phi Delta Kappa spotlighted during its anniversary celebrations.

Professor Crandall was the department chairman for two years. He received his education at BYU, receiving his Bachelor of Science degree in 1944 and his master's in 1948.

Upon graduation he became a teacher and assistant to the treasurer until 1950 when he was appointed assistant professor of accounting. He formerly was secretary to the division superintendent of Utah Power and Light Company and filled a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to California in 1940-42.

Formerly Y Day has been related as a campus clean-up day. Teachers have suspended classes on the assumption that students would help clean up, but only half the students have actually reported for duty, according to John Perry, special events committee chairman.

Last year Y Day was billed as an activities day, because the student cost more in dollars than it would cost to hire clean-up help, stated Perry.

The bill states in part, the "Y Day should include every year the pageant of the Y, spectator and participation field events, a free lunch and an evening dance."

The original bill also states that all classes should be suspended for the day and that the studentbody president should appoint committee members for the day. These legislations are being revised into recommendations.

The bill provides for one administrator to be appointed as advisor for Y Day, and for the event to be scheduled on the first Wednesday in May.

Soft As Summer Air

Spring Fashion Free In Line, Gay In Color

by Margaret Hunter
Daily Universe Society Writer

THE COMING OF spring brings with it a new look in fashion. The greatest change is subtle in line, color, as well as fabric.

Blousing is a main factor in bringing about this softness of line. Many of the suits have bloused or loose unfitted jackets.

Most suit tops are shortened to or above the waistline. The long jacket of a suit now ends about two inches below the waist.

MANY JACKETS are full but cut off to achieve this new line. A bloused, waist-length, draw-string jacket is another way to give the looser feeling.

Skirts, although predominately slim, are given ease through full length pleating or soft light pleats at the waistline.

Capes are important news for spring. They also give a softer, looser silhouette. Although many are slim and full length, most are short and come to the hipline. Large full-collared capes are very fashionable.

THE MOST exemplary dress of this style is the shirtwaist dress. It will show great popularity because of its ease of line as well as its being a well-known classic.

It can be made simply or have variations to suit the new styles. Blousing of the top is common. Ruffles down the front band give feminine touch for a girl. Large collars also add a difference.

Stripes and soft glen plaids are predominant in the shirtwaists, but even dressy black silk dresses are made in this style.

COLOR BEING THE next important spring fashion change, also brings in a new softness.

Hyacinth blue and mauve rank are the two most important colors for the spring wardrobe. A touch of navy to either of these will add a classical note.

Other soft spring colors are pussy-willow grey, beige combined with grey, and beige and carmel.

Fabric plays an impressive role this season. Silk is a leader. Silk tweeds and shantungs are highly popular. Silk blends, such as with cotton, are also used.

TINY STRIPES, soft plaids and large floating prints are highlights in fabric. Block and screen prints are most popular.

Food Expert Says Cook Meat Slow

COLUMBIA, Mo., (8S) — A Missouri University nutritionist warns that cooking meat too long and too high a temperature causes it to shrink.

According to Flora Carl, fewer servings with higher cost per serving will result. She pointed out that a 10-pound cut of beef round lost two to three portions, or servings, when it was pot-roasted for an hour past the well done stage.

Miss Carl advises "keep temperatures low when cooking meat and cook only until done."

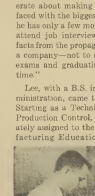
"What's it like to be

A MANUFACTURING ENGINEER AT IBM?"

Four years ago, Yale senior Lee Baker asked himself this question. Today, as a Product Control Engineer in IBM Manufacturing Engineering, he reviews his experience and gives some guidelines that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your engineering career.



Designing a paperwork system

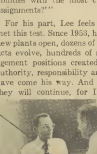
How to select an employer

To the college senior faced with a job decision, Lee has this to say: "Pick your employer by this simple test: 'Is the company expanding fast enough to provide adequate scope for your talents and ambitions? Is it interested in your long-range management development? Will it treat you as an individual and match your abilities with the most challenging assignments?'"

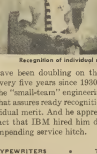
"It's tough," Lee sympathizes, "for a college senior to feel confident about choosing a job. For four years he's been trained to be critical and deliberate about making decisions. Now, faced with the biggest decision of all, he has only a few months in which to attend job interviews, separate the facts from the propaganda, and select a company—not to mention passing exams and graduating at the same time."

Lee, with a B.S. in Industrial Administration, came to IBM in 1955. Starting as a Technical Engineer in Production Control, he was immediately assigned to the General Manufacturing Education program—a 10-month course with rotating assignments in all phases of the work—manufacturing, purchasing, production. In addition to four weeks of formal classroom study, he also spent two in the Boston Sales Office, calling on accounts with the IBM salesmen.

Lee's career was temporarily interrupted by a two-year hitch with the Air Force in Korea. Back at IBM in 1955, he has since been promoted to Production Control Engineer. His present job is to design paperwork systems to insure a smooth flow of work through the plant where the famous IBM electronic computers are manufactured. "It takes creative engineering ability to design these systems," says Lee, "and it takes administrative ability to 'sell' a system to higher management and make it stick."



"Selling" the system



Recognition of individual merit

What's "life" like at IBM?

At IBM, Poughkeepsie, Lee lives a "full life." He belongs to a local sports car group, drives an Austin Healy. He skis at Brewster. He is a member of the IBM Footlighters and a local drama workshop. At present, he shares an apartment with two other engineers and a "Madison-ette" set, but plans to marry "the girl next door" (in hometown Hamburg, Conn.), in the very near future. In this connection, Lee advises seniors to pay special attention to company benefits. "They may seem like a yawning matter when you're single, but they mean a lot when you assume responsibilities. IBM's are the best I know."

Lee lives a full life

IBM hopes that this message will help to give you some idea of what it's like to work in Manufacturing Engineering at IBM. There are equal opportunities for E.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians and Liberal Arts majors in IBM's many divisions—Research, Product Development, Sales and Technical Services. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our latest brochure and tell you when IBM will next interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of Engineering Recruitment, Mr. R. A. Whitehorne, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM, Room 2*301, Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

Skyline Race Tightens Up

by Mark Murphy

POISELESS Brigham Young's Skyline title balloon has sprung a leak and three clubs are still tangled in a second place travel which might blast the hopping Cats right out of the picture

Montana poured salt in the Cougars' wounds after their traffic lacing at the hands of the Utes Thursday night The tough Redskins fought the Brigham season Saturday in whipping the potential champs 71-63 BYU broke one of basketball's traditional rules in failing to stall the comfortable lead with four minutes remaining

BY WINNING the Silvertips contented their unaccustomed lofty position of second place

From out of the dark of a pre-only disappointing season has come another definite threat to the BYU hoop supremacy. Last fire in Denver, and the Pioneers are making pre-season prediction look good by making a mobile of their opposition in the second half of conference

LADY LUCK joined the Pioneer aggregation boosting them into nine-point squashers over Colorado A&M and Wyoming Cowboys edged A&M 62-61 Friday and took an overtime from Wyoming 64-62 Saturday

Utah's red-hot Redskins regained their hold on a share of the league lead by deflating BYU 71-63 and edging Utah State in a wild one 62-60

WHILE UTAH was walloping BYU, Montana bombed Utah State 77-67

Skyline play comes to a hectic finish this week and the Cats seem to have the upper hand playing both of their games at home against New Mexico and Denver

Jerry's Jargon

by Jerry Cunningham

The easiest thing in the world for a fan to do is to tell a coach how to run his team AFTER the game is over.

Arm chair coaches all over the campus are chirping "should have stalled," "ball control would've won it," and "A deep freeze was in order," now that the Montana-BYU affair is history.

They think that because the Cougars had a commanding seven point lead in the waning minutes of the game that Stan Watts should have played "keep away" with the Grizzlies.

Our air chair experts contend that the averages are all in favor of the team which has the lead and stalls it out, since the opposition has to press hard to get the ballwhichresults in fouls Then too, when the opposition is pressing hard they often leave unguarded men under the bucket.

And since Montana had a franchise on the boards and every time the Cougars shot and missed (which was nearly every time) they lost the ball—all the more reason for pulling the freeze.

These fans point to a number of games when a timely BYU stall late in the game blew it wide open in favor of the Cougars

Coach Watts has been right on a number of late-game strategy moves But maybe this time the personable hoop man called it wrong

Anyway, the Brighams must whip Denver this week to win it Nobody expects New Mexico to give the Cats much trouble on Friday night.

Denver, counted out of the race a couple of weeks ago, would pull into a tie for the bunting, should they whip Utah State Friday and BYU Saturday.

The Pioneers were picked to win the conference by many experts They'll be coming to Provo Saturday to prove these experts right.
